Synopsis
Henry has been working at Studio Kristen Whittle as an architectural designer since its inception in 2019. Prior to this, Henry completed his internship and became a graduate architect at Bates Smart, Melbourne, from 2016.

Henry has sympathetic rapport with both sides of the architectural profession - Construction and Expression. Having been raised in family of artists and fabrication contractors. He has a deep appreciation for the many facets of design, that extend well beyond architecture and into a diverse range of endeavors including motorsport, fine art and music. He draws inspiration from the nuances of the 'creative process' and how these subtleties become expressed in the finished product.

He has a strong belief that architecture should not reflect the trends of now but must transcend the current zeitgeist to create permanent, sustainable, human centered buildings. Having completed his masters in 2018, Henry placed himself at the intersection of emerging technologies, utilizing advanced modeling and fabrication software to excel ideas and concepts.

Over the last few years Henry has had the opportunity to be immersed a wide variety of architectural typologies, ranging from urban design strategy on the $10B Melbourne Metro competition to high level façade detailing on 'Build to Rent' schemes throughout Melbourne. Currently his role focuses itself around research and the production of design material. Henry is in the process of registering with the Australian Institute of Architects having surpassed the required hours and experience.
